A sold-out crowd gathered to honor two champions of children at Place of Hope's 14th annual Hope Bash.

The event took place March 6 at The Breakers, and honored both the Cathleen McFarlane Foundation and The Breakers for its support of foster children, human trafficking survivors and families in need.

Maria McCraney and Kim Tiano were chairwomen for the evening, which had a garden theme.

The theme was inspired by "The Secret Garden," a 1993 film that has been remade.

The evening with a cocktail reception and then moved to the Ponce de Leon Ballroom for brief remarks from Place of Hope director Charles Bender and the presentation of the Harris L. Weinstein Hero of Hope awards to The Breakers and the Cathleen McFarlane Foundation.

Atesh Chandra accepted the corporate award on behalf of The Breakers and Sunni Johnson accepted the foundation award.

The night continued with dinner and dancing.

More than 750 people attended, including sponsors included Greg and Jennifer Saville, Sal and Kim Tiano, John and Holly Boswell, Todd and Holly Cannon, Jason and Lauren Doyle, Eric and Sue Ende, Steve and Jill Fried, Larry and Jacqueline Green, Shane and Julie Humble, Kelley Kronenberg, Mickey and Brenda Nocera, Steven and Caroline Vogel, and Deborah Weinstein.

Proceeds benefit Place of Hope, a faith-based, state-licensed children's service organization offer a full continuum of care for those in need.

Its services include family outreach and intervention, maternity care, human trafficking education and prevention, for recovery for victims of sex and labor trafficking, affordable transitional housing and supportive services for young adults, housing and support for homeless families, and foster care recruitment.
